

This week at Parc Jean-Drapeau...

August 10 to 16, 2009

CULTURE AND ENTERTAINMENT

La Fête des enfants de Montréal

The Fête des enfants de Montréal starts this Friday at Parc Jean-Drapeau, where more than a hundred activities await the children, beginning at 1 p.m. At 8 p.m., a major show will be staged, in collaboration with Unicef Canada. And the Fête continues all day on Saturday and Sunday.

The schedule of events includes singing, dancing and music, as well as an array of creative and sports-related workshops, face-painting workshops, and the ever-popular inflatable climbing structures. Entry to the site and all of the activities are absolutely FREE.

A range of services is provided to families: bottle warmers, changing tables, nursing stations, places to leave strollers, and even a spot to store coolers.

Also, the STM is making its subway and bus service available to families free of charge on Saturday and Sunday. To take advantage of the free transportation, simply pick up a pass at participating Jean-Coutu pharmacies in the Greater Montreal region.
