It’s spring, and activities abound at Parc Jean-Drapeau!

Montréal, April 8, 2014 – Now that spring is finally here it’s the perfect opportunity to enjoy the sun by indulging in the many activities going on at Parc Jean-Drapeau! Whether you’re into biking, jogging, inline skating, hiking, having a picnic or a host of other things, the majestic Parc Jean-Drapeau site is “the” place to go, and it’s just 5 minutes from downtown Montréal.

Public art displays, Floralies Gardens and hiking trails
Take the hiking trails to get a close-up look at many public-art works, most of which were done for Expo 67, along with lush gardens and green spaces surrounded by lagoons, thousands of flowers and many species of trees and shrubs. You might even come across a fox or a groundhog along the way!

Circuit Gilles-Villeneuve
The 4.361-kilometre-long Circuit Gilles-Villeneuve provides a great path for cyclists, inline skaters, joggers and walkers. And as an added bonus, it offers a spectacular view overlooking the Saint Lawrence River and downtown Montréal!

Park and games for children
A games area is set up for children, and it includes swings, seesaws, spider-web ropes, etc. Take advantage of the space and the shade afforded by mature trees to have a picnic, or simply to hang out there!

Two museums to see
To learn about the history of European civilizations in New France and North America, the Stewart Museum offers guided tours and conferences. And if the environment is your passion, the Biosphère, Environment Museum, has many educational exhibits on air, water, biodiversity, climate change, sustainable development and lots more!

To find out about times and prices, and to learn more about the activities at the Parc, please go to www.parcjeandrapeau.com.